Wasteland or Wasted Land?

International Workshop of Architectural Design on the Site of National Interest in Bagnoli (Napoli) with Alfred Jacoby and Martin Rein Cano

This workshop is an international experience offering to the students of graduate or master courses. It is a design experiment within one or two specific classes. It is generally pointed to the Erasmus interchanges of foreign professors and have the quality of interdisciplinary experience aimed to define the 'architectural attitude' of the 'space' and the site exceptions of a place/city. This workshop is already framed in the "Erasmus+ Programme", collecting different students from universities around the world.

"This strip of land neither fulfills the longing for a natural enclave in the city's fabric, nor is it an untouched urban planning reserve (...) Our community of architects, landscape architects and designers will all usually unpack their know-how when asked to confront such a vast yet unused chunk of land. But what can they do if the raw material of their profession, the land itself, has demised?" | (Alfred Jacoby)
